

PATRIOTISM RISES ON ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF BANNER

Large Crowd Assembles in Front of Capitol To Honor Flag
Made By Betsy Ross

ADDRESS OF U. S. ATTORNEY
ROUSES HEARTY ENTHUSIASM

Flowers, Music and Song Are Homage Paid To Nation's Glorious Stars and Stripes

One hundred and forty years ago yesterday there was born on Arch Street, in Philadelphia, a new flag. Last night in Honolulu the birthday anniversary of that flag was celebrated, the Territory, municipality, army, navy and national guard, representatives of the federal government and various organizations joining in the ceremonies of the Elks, under whose ritual and by whose officers those ceremonies were conducted.

Before a platform in front of the Capitol more than 1500 patriotic citizens gathered last night to observe Flag Day. On the stand were the officers of the lodge, representatives of the government, the army and the navy and the speakers of the evening. In the audience a large number of soldiers and sailors could be noted and a large proportion of the crowd was women.

From the platform was read the history of the country's flag, an Elk paid tribute to the flag, United States Attorney Huber delivered an address that stirred patriotism in every hearer, and upon the platform was built the floral Liberty Bell. Beside the platform was the Hawaiian Band, which from time to time discoursed patriotic airs.

Elks Were In Charge

All of the ceremonies were attended by Mr. Huber, who was introduced and conducted by the Elks, the history of the flag, read by Lorrin Andrews, and the Elks' tribute, delivered by Harry Murray, brought forth hearty applause, but the address of Mr. Huber was fairly punctuated by it.

Introduced by Exalted Ruler Fiddes, Mr. Huber dwelt briefly on what has gone before and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

Continuing, the speaker said that the country was at this time with the sternest duties. "Three years ago," he said, a little cloud rose over a country in Europe and its meaning, and said no one could have listened to what had gone before without being better and more devoted American citizens.

REGISTRATION PLANS WELL UNDER WAY

From present indications it is expected that the work of registering all male residents of the Territory, between the ages of twenty-one and thirty years, citizen and alien alike, under the terms of the Selective Draft Bill, will begin about July 15.

The delay in starting the registration is due to the fact that the necessary stationery has only just arrived from the mainland and that the newly elected municipal and county officials will not take office until July 2, and it will be some time before they will be in a position to koku. It is expected, especially in the outside islands, that the municipal and county officials will lend their assistance to the government in this work.

Eleven mail bags received at the Governor's office yesterday from the mainland contain seventy-two thousand registration cards and half that number of registration certificates. These will be distributed among the eighty-four polling places in the Territory, the booths used at the recent municipal and county elections being still in place for the federal registration. The registration cards will be filled and signed in duplicate, one copy remaining here and the other being sent on to the war department in Washington. Every man registered will be given a registration certificate. Both cards and certificates will be numbered serially, according to precinct and county.

The registration law and the proclamation of the President on the subject will be translated into several languages, Hawaiian, Portuguese, Spanish, Japanese, Chinese and the two or three principal Filipino dialects, mainly. There may be Russian and German translations also. Arrangements will also be made for various interpreters at the different registration points.

To facilitate the work of registration, it is expected that the day set for the purpose will be declared a legal holiday by the Governor, under the territorial law passed by the local legislature four years ago.

Will Wayne, private secretary to the Governor, and Nelson S. Cunningham, chief clerk in the office of the Secretary of the Territory, will have largely the task of mapping out the coming registration.

Frederick A. Glund, chief clerk of the adjutant-general's office, National Guard of Hawaii, has been appointed federal disbursing officer and yesterday filed his bond. He is now awaiting the receipt of funds from Washington. He will keep his office in Room 14 of the Capitol, which will be made the headquarters for the registration campaign. The funds expected will be sufficient only for such printing and interpretations as will be absolutely necessary, and no more, it is believed.

Mr. Wayne emphasized the fact yesterday that in order to carry out the terms of the registration act much volunteer work by officials and citizens will be expected. In fact, steps have already been taken to solicit this aid, and already in Honolulu quite a number of prominent citizens have offered their services.

The registration card, to be filled and signed in duplicate, provides for answers to the following questions:

Name in full, given and family; age in years, home address, number, street, city and State; date of birth, month, day and year; are you (1) a natural-born citizen? (2) a naturalized citizen? (3) an alien? (4) or have you declared your intention (specify which)? where were you born? State? nation? If not a citizen, of what country are you a citizen or subject? what is your present trade, occupation or office? by whom employed? where employed? have you a father, mother, wife, child under twelve, or a sister or brother under twelve, solely dependent on you for support (specify which)? married? single? (which)? race (specify which); what military service have you held, rank, branch; years, nation or State; do you claim exemption from draft (specify grounds)?

The card is to be signed under the oath: "I affirm that I have verified above answers and that they are true." Signature or mark.

The registrar's report is on the reverse side of the card: 1. Tell, medium or short (specify which)? 2. Color of eyes? Color of hair? Build? 3. Has person lost arm, leg, hand, foot, or both eyes, or is he otherwise disabled (specify)?

The registrar signs under the following: "I certify that the person registered has read his own answers, and that I have witnessed his signature, and that all of his answers of which I have knowledge are true, except as follows. Then follows the number of the precinct, city or county, State, and date of registration.

The registration certificate, which will be given to the registered person, reads:

"No. (This number must correspond with that on the registration card). To whom it may concern, greetings: These presents attest, that in accordance with the proclamation of the President of the United States, and in compliance with law, (name), (name), County of (name), State of (name), has submitted himself to registration and has by me been duly registered this (name) day of (name) 1917." Signature of registrar.

ALLEGED RECRUITERS
TO PLEAD TOMORROW

G. S. Snyder, Frank S. Winder, B. Cruz and Pablo Manlapit, charged with allegedly recruiting laborers here for service away from the Territory, appeared before Judge Heen yesterday morning and had their cases continued to nine o'clock tomorrow morning for plea. The bonds of the defendants were fixed at $2500. Nine Filipinos, called as witnesses, were released on their own recognizance and were told to hold themselves ready to obey the call of the court.

SAPE, SURE, ALWAYS CURES

Do not suffer from cramp colic or pain in the stomach when Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy goes to the right spot and gives immediate relief. You cannot afford to be without it if you are subject to attacks of this kind. For sale by all Dealers, Benson, Smith, Agents for Hawaii.

MORE POLICEMEN WANTED BY ROSE

Sheriff Also Preparing To Ask
More Pay For Members of His Department

More money, more policemen and bigger pay for some of those he already has are among some of the requests that Sheriff Rose is preparing to make of the new board of supervisors when he presents his budget, on which he is now working.

Rose thinks his present force of six motorcycle policemen, who, he says, are the only members of the department not raised by the present board recently. He will suggest also that the mounted officers be taken out of the residential districts, their places to be taken by motorcycle officers with side cars. What the side cars are for is not explained as yet. The sheriff also wants more foot patrolmen in the downtown districts.

FATHER OF MURDERED KANOA BOYS IN COURT

Seven witnesses took the stand for the government yesterday in the further trial before Judge Heen of the division of the local circuit court in the case of the Territory against Keawe Kewakane, charged with first-degree murder. The witnesses were Mrs. Anaka, Capt. Harry T. Lake, "mapologist" George Kopin, Dr. R. G. Ayer, police surgeon; Kameaiki, Coroner Julius W. Asch, and Arthur McDuffie, captain of detectives.

The tax and hatchet, implements young Kewakane was charged with having used in the murder of George and Kama Kanoa, brothers, thirteen and nine years of age respectively, in Makiki Valley several months ago, were introduced in evidence. It will be remembered that a jury some weeks ago found Kewakane not guilty of the murder of George Kanoa. He is now on trial for the murder of Kama Kanoa, the young brother.

Kanoa, father of the murdered boys, told in the stand that the ax was kept behind the door of the shack in the valley where the brothers were killed. He did not know about the events that led to the tragedy and was not cross-examined by the defense, which is represented by Attorney Lorrin Andrews of the law firm of Andrews & Pittman. The hatchet, claimed the father, was kept outside of the shack. Coroner Asch's testimony was that he was called to the scene of the murder and found the two boys dead and resting in pools of their blood on the floor of the shack. McDuffie told of the confession alleged to have been made by the defendant to W. J. Sheldon and others.

The government has still four or five witnesses to call to the stand and those will probably testify today, in all probability the prosecution closing its case about noon. The trial will be resumed at nine o'clock this morning.

FINDS AUSTRALIANS FRIENDLY TO U. S.

Patriots heard a talk by F. J. Green at their weekly luncheon yesterday on the present attitude of Australians toward Americans. Contrary to some reports that have reached Honolulu he had found the feelings of the Australians friendly. This had been especially so, he said, since the declaration of war.

The speaker told of the obliteration of political lines in the antipodes and suggested that the Rotary Club take on itself to father a movement to bring about such results in Hawaii.

Green is a member of an old and prominent New York family.

J. M. Westgate, of the experiment station talked of the food question in the islands and Raymond C. Brown, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, told of opposition of one firm to the "daylight saving plan" and said that was the reason the chamber had taken no definite action.

Davis Uses His Wife and Police Officer As Targets

Getting drunk twice in rapid succession, throwing rocks at his wife and scolding a policeman on the jaw—such was the fate of J. R. Davis, a local contractor, in jail twice, which was his punishment for a drunken night of being "soused." Yesterday morning he was turned loose, and at ten o'clock was back again. In the meantime, according to the arresting officer, M. D. Barboza, Davis had had target practice, with his wife as the target and rocks as ammunition, and had punched the officer first on the right jaw and then on the left. He followed that up with kicking the officer. That made Barboza mad and he pitched him.

With a head of head of livestock for the army, the Matsun vessel, arrived yesterday morning from San Francisco, and is now at Pier 16 discharging. Her cargo runs close to eight thousand tons. The vessel is scheduled to sail for P. I. Aloha at six o'clock Saturday evening, to discharge Kauai freight and load sugar and from that port will visit the other islands to complete her cargo.

FIRST BUSINESS IS WIN THE WAR

Director of National Chamber of Commerce Roasts "Business
As Usual" Talk

WASHINGTON, May 28.—In an interview issued today through the committee on public information, dealing with the business situation, Edward A. Filene of Boston, president of William Filene's Sons Company, a director of the United States chamber of commerce and a member of the permanent committee on international chambers of commerce, said that business has but one job today, and that was to do the thing that would bring victory at the earliest possible moment.

"The needs of war—the needs of the country," said Mr. Filene, "will fully employ every capable man and woman. War will produce more new business than any practically possible economy plan could. But the length of the war—the rapidity with which victory will come—will depend on what kind of products our people are working on."

"I am not in sympathy with such appeals as are being spread broadcast urging people to keep right on spending as usual and branding economy as a sort of business treason. I do not for one moment think that such appeals are prompted by selfish motives. There is no class of men who, in my judgment, are more ready to make patriotic sacrifices than business men."

"The campaign for 'business as usual' has been launched by men who sincerely fear that widespread economy will cripple the war power of the nation by cutting down the volume of business, reducing the demand on producers, throwing men out of employment, and disturbing the business and financial morals of the country generally."

"Business Has But One Job Today"

"But while I recognize the patriotic impulse back of the 'business as usual' slogan, as a policy I regard it as unsound. It will prolong the war and hamper the fighting effectiveness of the nation every day it is practiced. Business has but one job today, and that is to do the thing that will bring victory at the earliest possible moment. And business cannot serve two masters."

Before the war our productive capacity was taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army, but an organized nation as well. And both must be organized to the same end. Looms before us our productive capacity is taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.' War demands not only an organized army,